Sniper, I actually have a mojo angler. It's 4-5 years old and i've beat the snot out of it. It has some serious battle scars but its still watertight and going strong.

It's a super stable kayak that will hold a lot of stuff (even 2 people in a pinch). You can stand up in it, but it's not practical to do while fishing imo. I've never flipped it while in use. You'll fall out of it before it flips.

Emotion's customer service is great too. I lost the knob for my console and they sent me a new one, no questions asked, free of charge. I wouldn't hesitate to buy another one of their kayaks. Let me know if you have another questions. If you can get down to my neck of the woods i'd even let you test paddle mine.
