I started to fly fish 10 years ago. I had a very good friend that talked me into doing it. I am glad I started to fish again. :)

I retired 4 years ago and the last time I fished, I was probably 15 years old. For the next 35 years, I was involved in family and work and had little time for myself, except for the occasional golf outing.

Now that I am retired, fly fishing gives me a chance to do something for my self. Weather that is important or not, I can't say but I always come home feeling physically and mentally recharged.

So I guess I would be one of those people who have nothing more important to do. I have a good family, a good wife and a good life. I feel I have accomplished the important thing in my life.

I'm going fishing.
