

---

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : 30" Browns

Re: 30" Browns

Author: : salmonoid

Date: : 2013/11/3 16:47:43

URL:

I am stuck at 21" for wild browns, landing six in that size range in my lifetime so far. One person that my brother knew claims to have caught a 30" brown out of one of the streams that yielded one of my 21"ers but you know that drill - I know someone who knows someone who caught a 30" brown as big as his arm out of there, and that guy doesn't lie 😊

I do think that low 20's browns are more common than we think, but I do not think that 30" browns are common at all. You don't see them listed in PFBC surveys. The streams they are in are probably as you describe - they fly under the radar, but they also probably only have one of such class of fish, a true river (or small stream) monster.