[quote]What pound test leader or line are you using for the stinger hook? Are you just doing a clinch knot to the shank of the hook or just tying it down to the line with thread. I would assume a knot because I would not trust tying thread to hold with a decent bass on.

which fly are you talking about ??

If it is my last one there is no knot the fly is made from 250 lb. S.S. welding wire links and the rear hook is placed on one of the links. there ain't a bass large enough to pull this apart. I would use this wire setup on a shark and not worry. if the hooks would not bend could pull the rocks off of a jetty...lol
