

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Winter fishing

Re: Winter fishing

Author: : ebroesicke

Date: : 2013/11/6 19:25:29

URL:

The past few years, I have done most of my trout fishing in winter. I am lucky to have a very good limestone stream less than 1 mile from my house, and it fishes very well in the winter. I have mostly focused on nymph fishing, and more specifically using in-line indicators and tight lining, ala Czech Nymphing. It works. There are times when fish will rise very well to midges, which I hate with a passion. Mostly because I am horrible at fishing that situation. the past two winters, being relatively mild have had quite a few midge hatch days. Add in some BWO, sometimes.