It's a good question Bob, but one I often ask myself along these lines is this:

If I catch a fish in one of these pools is it best to put him back in that same pool when I release it or if I release him to the stream above or below the pool does it matter?

I often wonder if I am doing something wrong to the fish if I don't put it right back where it came from.

I usually release the fish below the place I caught them, and it is surprising how easily they move back to where they came from. They do this even when there is a big obstacle.
