Wow Matt - that's a heckuva trout!

I have clear 20" marks on my fly rods and usually photograph the fish with the rod. With the pic developed I can verify the size. Many bass I've landed over the years have turned out to be a bit shorter than I guessed. Some very large trout that I've got over the years that I initially thought were mid to upper 20s, when carefully viewed in the photo, turn out to be 23 or 24. I have a tape measure in my vest but never seem to use it.

Sometimes a fish like Matt is holding can be a full inch or two longer just due to extension of the lower jaw kype.
