While I think this topic is very important I don't totally agree with taking this person's picture and posting it on an internet forum, especially when pointing out his wrong doing. If I were a newbie (which I am compared to some who have fished many many years), I would not be happy to find my picture here under this topic. Think about what we go to the stream for... Solitude, a break from the day to day grind, the enjoyment of fishing, goals and challenges we seek to overcome etc...the last thing anyone wants is to be paparazzied on the creek! I'm hoping that this guy took the advice and went to research redds and trout spawning a little bit further. He might end up on the internet and find useful information and/or he might end up right here and find that he's been photographed and made an example of. It's a bit harsh in my opinion.
