

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Broken Sage rod.

Re: Broken Sage rod.

Author: : McSneek

Date: : 2013/11/12 10:31:26

URL:

I took my broken Sage Z-Axis back to the fly shop where it was purchased. They filled out a warranty form and sent the rod to Sage for repair/replacement. There was never any mention of a $50.00 fee or any S&H charges. I was told it may take 6 - 8 weeks for replacement/repair. I have back ups and at this time of year it's no big deal.

I guess as long as Sage offers the warranty I would keep sending the rod back to them for repair.