

---

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Fly Fishing Hacks

Re: Fly Fishing Hacks

Author: : Biggie

Date: : 2013/11/12 22:07:53

URL:

When you hook your fly to the keeper on your rod, pull some extra line and hook it over your reel handle. This keeps any splitshot from tapping your rod as you walk. Might just prevent one of those snaps while fighting a large fish.

I have two rubbermaid tubs in the car, one for dry stuff (vest, fly boxes, ect.) the other for waders and boots (dry or wet) When caught on an out of reach tree branch, turn your rod around and hook the reel over the branch and pull it down. I have retrieve many flies and alot that weren't mine with this trick.

If you don't have any splitshot on, when in the trees, just reel all the line in pointing your rod directly at the stuck fly, most times it comes loose.