why are most of you saltie so tight lipped?.

Are you referring to PAFF forum members.... or have you been talking to other salt anglers in other places to get info?

If you're seeking more info from PAFFers here on this forum, it's worth remembering that the number of PAFF guys who fish the salt are a small number of our community - although growing. Ours is largely a trout fishing community. In recent years, the number of forum members who are talking about warm water and saltwater fishing has grown substantially (with some encouragement from some of us who have tried to steer the conversation more toward fish other than trout) but just compare the number of bass fishing and saltwater reports, pics, and threads vs trout threads.

A single thread about stocking vs wild trout, just by itself, can draw hundreds of replies which is more activity than the entire Warm Water forum sees in weeks. If you're really looking for a lot of information about salt water, there are better places on the internet.
