yep, my girlfriend and I get out on the stream just enough, always a good time. Then again, we enjoy plenty of active pursuits together, lots of bike rides, plenty of skiing, hiking. She's into it and enjoys it and gives me a chance to fish from a different perspective where it's not 100% about me. Instead I get to share some of what I've learned over the years and seeing her progress is fulfilling in its own way. Our only real gear outlay was for her waders and boots, I pretty much had extra of everything else for her, so the entrance hurdle was pretty low for us. I still get plenty of quiet time on my own on the water during the week and she understands when I need to take a full day on my own, just as she does herself with her hobbies. It's a pretty sweet balance we've found.
