

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : types of beads and where you get them?

Re: types of beads and where you get them?

Author: : odizz17

Date: : 2013/11/16 2:03:06

URL:

When I'm tying nymphs, it's either tungsten or glass as of recently. Usually I find tungsten beads on ebay, a hundo pack is usually available for a good price. I've started hiding the bead in the thorax recently, so color isn't as important (for the time being). I have to assume it helps under certain conditions. The glass beads, I get at AC Moore's or Michaels. EXTREMELY cheap for the glass beads, and I haven't broke any while fishing. The translucency is pretty sweet on the colored glass. Purple, green, and peacock have been doing well. I also picked up a matte black color, which looks nice on a fly, but haven't got a chance to fish em yet...