Personally, I love stocked vs. wild topics. They are fun!

It's like arguing football. Can we change what happens on the field? No, but a lot of people like to discuss/argue it anyhow. In the end, maybe we learn something and maybe we don't. Still fun to talk about

You can't change what happens on football field.

But I think it is possible to change what happens on the streams. Management of wild trout streams has been very much influenced by anglers. In PA and in other places.

If you are able to identify wild trout you can learn something about wild trout populations in the streams from your own observations, and be a part of the process.
