

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Rod and Reel Brands

Re: Rod and Reel Brands

Author: : boychick

Date: : 2013/11/22 21:28:06

URL:

I'm not very brand loyal with the rods I fish. I get whatever fits the need and casts well for me. I tend to find a rod I want and wait around for it to go on sale or closeout.

I really like Orvis and Lamson reels. Both brands have preformed very well for me and the warranty service has been great too. I dropped a battenkill mid-arbor off the roof of my car, the spool was knocked off center. You could hear metal scraping as the spool spun. I dropped it at the local Orvis store, they sent it in for repair no questions asked. I had it back in 2.5-3 weeks and it has been as good as new since I got it back. I also had a Lamson Guru that began squeeking when I stripped line off. They sent me a new clutch for it and that solved the problem. By sending me the part they saved me the warranty fee and cost of postage. It was nice that the Lamson guys did that for me.