
Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : "Crate Training"

"Crate Training"

Author: : Swattie87

Date: : 2013/11/25 17:04:43

URL:

Been taking my last few remaining days off for the year to help house break our puppy that came home two Fridays ago. I've been trying to get her a few 3 hour or so stints in the crate to help build her up to the 4 or so hours she'll need to be able to make it when my wife and I are both at work and my wife can get home for lunch. The plus side of this of course is I need something to do while she's getting her "crate practice." Given the limitations of her bladder at 10 weeks old and about 3 pounds, this means I've been staying rather local. Today I drove around and scouted access for a local limestoneer that unfortunately is mostly posted. I found a short stretch today that was in a small public park and decided to give it a few casts.

Wasn't the best habitat in the world, but there were a few nice runs and a whopper of a culvert pool to keep me interested. Drifted a size 16 Olive BH Scud through the likely spots for an hour or so and picked up a half dozen Browns. Best two were around 12", and one of them had the largest Scud I've ever seen in its mouth...seriously about a size 10! Didn't see any active spawners, but saw two nice redds in the tails of the shallower pools. One smaller one, and a VERY large one that looked like a communal type deal. Got a hot turkey sandwich with MP/gravy at the diner on the way home, and then played with the pup. Nice late Fall day out of the office.

(2) - Little limestoneer in a park. Wish more of this one was open.

(3) - Colorful little one

(4) - First 12 incher

(6) - Second 12 incher

(063) - "Sydney" - Yes, she is a Pens fan.

Attach file:

 11-25-13 (2) PAFF.jpg (171.49 KB)

 11-25-13 (3) PAFF.jpg (135.12 KB)

 11-25-13 (4) PAFF.jpg (174.07 KB)

 11-25-13 (6) PAFF.jpg (138.04 KB)

 Syd 063 PAFF.jpg (101.87 KB)

