Very nice Browns salmonoid. You always seem to find the ones with the most massive rudders! Bit of a kype on that second one too it looks like.

I dunked my camera (cheapo Sanyo) last Fall. Dried it in rice for a few days and it worked. Had intermittent condensation issues for about a month after, but it's been fine since. I still don't carry it in any protective device or bag. At $50, it's disposable if it gets dunked and doesn't come back to life. If I were to spend more on the next one I'd think about some kind of protection probably.
