

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : When is it just fishin' but not "fly" fishin'

Re: When is it just fishin' but not "fly" fishin'

Author: : pcray1231

Date: : 2013/11/27 14:24:41

URL:

Quote:

I'll go with Fly Rod, Reel and Line with a leader that is one third the amount of fly line you have out (9 ft +/-) for tackle.

I'm not fly fishing more often as I am, then. With say, a 9 ft leader, that would mean you have to have 18 ft of fly line off the tip. i.e. a 27 ft cast or longer!

I'd say well more than 50% of my casts are under 27 ft. Dang near 100% of them if high stick nymphing or brookie fishing.

Quote:

Also, A flyfisher person will normally wade in the water where as the spin/bait casters stand on shore line or banks.

Wow, where do you fish? I grew up spinfishing, and we were waders, as are all of the other spin guys I see. The angles and so forth may be different, but when I switched, there was zero change in the amount of time I spent wading.