Thinking about it more, I don't really think it'll get warm enough to melt the snow that quick. From my experiences, a slow warmup may bring the water up but it'll still have a nice green color. If it's gets very warm(up into the 40s and above) quickly then the streams will start to blow out. I don't know.....I'm sure they'll be just fine Saturday and probably Sunday too.

I have decided on going tomorrow though, mainly because Saturday's supposed to get windy(yeah I'm chickening out lol). I've been hearing the slush has been pretty bad in the mornings too.
