Well, keep in mind I've never surf fished on the Pacific coast and have never seen a surf perch.....however, from what I've read about them, the rod you have sounds about right. If it were me, I'd pick an intermediate line although a fast sink line might be useful under some circumstances. Surf perch aren't big so you don't need a big drag with lots of backing. My understanding is they like shrimp-like flies. If you don't tie, check out any store with bonefish flies and order some in orange and pink colors. A stripping basket is always useful when FFing on the beach.
