I sincerely hope that someone did not poison the guy's water, although there are people who think their "right" to fish trumps property owners' rights. I walked out the lane earlier in the fall and saw the camper, but no one was around that I could see and I had parked farther down the road so I can't speak to the parking situation right there.

On the access that has been revoked off of Long Lane, I'm having a hard time picturing what stretch this is, since the creek doesn't intersect Long Lane anywhere. Is it one of the farms that has a driveway off of Long Lane?

Unfortunately, even if the property line does not include the lane or access road, it's never good if there is an adjacent to a stream property owner who has an axe to grind with anglers trying to access the stream. Angler and property owner goodwill gets trampled in these situations.
