winter is the season of the midge fishing. I love winter because its easy to pick flies. never go to the stream in the winter without a zebra midge. I fish size 18 to a 22 usually.

another great pattern that I use is what I call a herl midge. I am not sure if it a pattern that someone already made up but I saw it in a tying video for a march brown. you take a singe herl and use a pencil eraser to take the greenish blue fuzzy part off. then you wrap it around the hook. add a little black dubbing for a thorax. keep it small size 20 to 24.

you want to put the flies right in the fishes face. they will eat its just a matter of making it easy for them.
