id say it depends on the size of the body of water and current of the stream. I hooked one on a five and I would day it pulled me into the backing but it wasn't about being out guyed. I was using 5x and I have a crappy reel. if you have a reel with a smooth drag its probably fine.

there are spots where I fish that have monster like 20 and 30 pound carp. I have snagged them on hooks intended for shad and I would prefer to have heaver gear. when I try this spring im going to bring an 8wt
