

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Starting on Limestoneers

Re: Starting on Limestoneers

Author: : phiendWMD

Date: : 2013/12/21 20:20:35

URL:

I just starting fly fishing this year. Valley Creek is the closest worthwhile place to catch trout to me, so I went there quite a bit this summer. It frustrated me to no end. It took me about 8-9 trips there to finally catch a fish. I never catch a ton of fish anywhere, but I can usually get a couple most places. VC is in a class of its own IMO. It probably didn't help that I insist on using dries and wouldn't tie a nymph on. Sorry I don't have much of anything useful to add except listen to the advice you get here and don't give up. If you put in enough time and effort, it will come together for you.

Since we are on the topic, can anyone tell me how far past the Turnpike you can fish? I've fished through the park up to the Turnpike but never past there. I'm going to try to make it there next Saturday and want to check out a little more than I've already seen.