I like all the ideas, but as Brookiechaser said, I am just not sure you would see much difference because truthfully, I hardly see anyone keep anything during the later season anyway. At least on some of the waters that I frequent where it is legal to keep during extended season.

I am on the water almost every day at this time of year, and just don't see fish being creeled. Obviously it happens, but it just seems like guys out now are not out there to keep a limit of 12" ers.

And pellethead, yea not all people that fish a spin rod are meat hunting fools. I still love to fish the spin rod along with the fly rod and when I pick up the spin rod I don't suddenly have a loss of ethics.

I have said it before and I'll say it again, and I love ALL trout fishing, but some of the best most ethical trout anglers I know are primarily spin fisherman.

It's all good.
