

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : A Lancaster County Brookie Stream

Re: A Lancaster County Brookie Stream

Author: : troutbert

Date: : 2008/10/3 8:28:53

URL:

I don't think killing chubs will make the slightest difference in the trout population. If the conditions are right for brook trout, they'll do fine. If not, they won't.

Trout need good water quality, good water temps, good physical habitat etc. It's all about maintaining the quality of the stream.

Both chubs and brook trout are native fish and both have existed here for a very long time. Chubs didn't drive out the brookies, or vice versa.