Despite no state stocking this fall the Middle Branch White Clay Creek DHALO section (Good Hope Rd. downstream to confluence of east branch) has fished very well all winter and should continue to do so. Most in the 10-12" range, all stocked, predominantly brown trout but some rainbows and some larger trout also to be found.

There is a local fly club (White Clay Fly Fishers, search Google for website). The club meets at the London Tract Meeting House (next to White Clay Preserve office), 3rd Tuesday each month, 7 PM. The club is the reason trout fishing is so good in that stream section and deserves support.

DHALO areas are C&R right now so you should enjoy.
