I have the 5/6 reel. I haven't used it a ton, mostly because I bought it at the very end of May, to go on my rod which is mostly used in April/May. So it'll get more of a workout this spring.

But I have used it and it worked just fine. I only landed little trouts but based on pulling line out, the drag system seems smooth and capable of some power. Looks decent. LA is always nice and quick for bringing in line. Ability to withstand dirt and sand is still TBD, in my limited use I didn't really abuse it.

I'm not about to rave about any reel, I still see them as mostly low priority item which does little more than hold line. But Ryan's a good guy I wanted to support. I needed a reel. It looked like it was nice and the price was good. And I certainly have no complaints so far.
