

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Carpin today

Re: Carpin today

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2014/2/2 20:55:54

URL:

Cool stuff.

It's been my experience that carp can be found year 'round in many of the same pools where they can be seen in summer. I'll often check some of my favorite, slow pools for SMBs well into late November and find that bass have migrated out but the carp are always there. And they're still there the following March when I'm back looking for the returning bass. Folks think of carp as a warm season fish to pursue but perhaps there's an overlooked, cold weather river fishery for these guys.

DD,

Are other carp FFers that you're familiar with routinely pursuing these fish in winter?