

---

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Early Black Stonefly (Taeniopteryx nivalis)

Early Black Stonefly (Taeniopteryx nivalis)

Author: : Alnitak

Date: : 2014/2/21 9:06:35

URL:

Yesterday I was fishing on the Hammer Creek on the Lancaster/Lebanon County border. Sunny and about 45F, there were some stoneflies hatching in small numbers. They appeared to be Early Black Stoneflies (Taeniopteryx nivalis), but I didn't take one to key it all the way out, although I'm relatively confident in the genus.

Unfortunately the fish just weren't biting on much of anything I tried. I did manage to hook into one large brown trout that knocked the hook off on a rock just as I was about to net him. Next time!

Jeff

Attach file:

---

 PAFF-02542.jpg (129.16 KB)

