

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : strike indicators

Re: strike indicators

Author: : JustFish

Date: : 2008/10/24 12:08:44

URL:

Quote:

jayL wrote:

The putty is nice, but in warm weather, it becomes almost unusable in my opinion. I always used the loon biostrike. Anyone have any ideas of anything better that might not have this problem?

Biostrike is the best puddy. I once ran out and my buddy gave me the orvis stuff. It sucked...It was real heavy and hard to cast.

Don't know if loon is good in the summer? I fish a tandem with a terrestrial as my first fly all late spring-summer.