Pittsburgh is a great city with tons to offer, but it is not exactly trout town USA. There are opportunities for trout fishing within an hour or so of city though, but none likely comparable to the San Juan.

If you are willing to hit the road for a couple hours, you can easily be on some very good water. I've been living in the city for about 6 years and spend many weekends camping and fishing north of Pittsburgh and in Central PA. It's not a terrible trade-off, having the amenities and culture of a big city available, and in your case proximity to school, with the ability to get away to the " Pa wilds" on the weekends.
