I've posted that link in threads before, as well as cited the Vincent study for my position on stocking over native and wild trout.

Pennsylvania could take note. I'd love to see the PFBC adopt Montana's policy. I doubt it ever will though, as we are the "Saudi Arabia" of Marcellus Shale and the money is in their corner.

Montana, as a state, currently promotes their beauty and outdoor recreational activities. I was not alive during the time of the Vincent study, I'm curious if Montana promoted recreational tourism as much before the study?
