Wouldn't it be nice if we could get Richard Vincent to come to PA and talk to our legislators? The PFBC biologists know of his work and would change PA's stocking practices in a 'New York' minute if they thought they wouldn't lose their jobs.

By the way, we went thru this with the wild turkey. Hatchery-raised turkeys were decimating what few wild turkeys we had 50 years ago. Then the NWTF stepped in and convinced the PFBC to halt stocking of pen-raised turkeys. It was a horrendous battle. But look where we are now. Anybody interested in going back to turkey stocking?!

Morale: Mother Nature does it best! After all, she has had millions of years of practice.
