It is what it is...considering that many on this board enjoy and brag about going out and catching a few 3 to 6 inch fish on a regular basis (myself included), how could steelhead fishing not be fun. Fortunately, the seclusion that comes with brookie fishing does not always come with Erie. For people who harvest fish, this is a wet dream (pun intended). So of course you will encounter more and different types of fishermen there. But if you can't find a way to enjoy it in spite of success, others manners or weather...you aren't trying.
