I look forward to attending more of this chapter's events and I felt they deserved some recognition here.

I'd say you're right (bump)!

Folks who haven't done so...owe it to themselves to check out their local TU meetings. There's often a wealth of local knowledge on streams, land ownership, conservation initiatives and pollution threats. There are some things you can't find or learn on the internet.....but you can still do it the old school way: network face to face with folks in the know. TU meetings are a very good place to start.
