laurelrun keep at it and don't give up! Buy various different flies in different sizes, Switch flies often if you aren't getting hits in waters that you know trout exist. It's worked for me.

I bought all the flies on the dozen fly list on the forum and in various colors. StreamFlys.com has great pricing and ships fast. I just placed a second order with them for bunch more flies.

Another tip I learned was if you aren't getting snags every 5-6 casts you aren't deep enough. That was the reason I added the split shot early in my trip today. After I did that and found a fly the fish would hit it was all on me after that. Not sure if strike indicator would help but I was hooking trout multiple times on the olive woolly buggler, would see them turn and the flash from their belly and then when I I pulled up they spit the hook.
