

---

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Fly Fishing Road Trip West

Re: Fly Fishing Road Trip West

Author: : bikerfish

Date: : 2014/4/8 18:02:50

URL:

great time of the year to be out west, in fact, I'll be out there somewhere also. FWIW, I'd skip Yellowstone, unless your dead set on seeing the tourist stuff. I went through there 2 years ago in September and was STILL stuck in traffic jams.

The tetons are awesome, well worth the time to do some hikes.

also, IDAHO, and not just the henry's fork, there are tons of streams in Idaho, and few tourists.

good fishing in the wind river range also, to the east of Jackson.

Montana is simply terrific, trout rivers everywhere, you can do the well known ones, but the ones that aren't as popular are worth fishing also, and chances are you'll have them to yourself.

oh yeah, don't forget to do the beartooth hwy, and yes, there are trout in all those little streams you will be passing over.

bottom line, you can't go wrong, lot's of options, and you have a good amount of time, so you can move around in case of bad weather and such.