I was a big trout nut in Montana for 30 years.

Two things that are quite different are your trout back east are more obese as a typical four pounder not filled with eggs would be right around 28 inches. The other is my night fishing was Always done under quarter to quarter moon phases as I wasn't about to wade those big rivers during the dark phase. the trout would cooperate but they tended to feed in fits and spurts rather steadily so i would go for hours with no action than bang, bang than stop...

No way am I suggesting the fish in the East would react the same as everyone seems to want to get the other guys in the dark.
