So I was at Penns Creek this weekend to fish the catch and release section. I see that the tunnel is still closed so I made the trek over the hill. On the other side I was talking to one of the locals who said that the tunnel is the same as it has been but that someone complained to the state so now they have posted the signs. Anyone have any insight to that. Guess I will continue to trek around.

By the way it was a beautiful weekend and a lot of little black stone flies were hatching. Water was high and I did not see any consistent risers. Picked up a couple on stone fly nymphs.
