Browns eat brookies?

I have a buddy who lives in potter where we have a camp and is a brown trout catching expert on small free stoners. He said he has been seeing a decrease in brookies and an increase in browns and claims the browns are getting big on the brookies. I always figured as much happens but enough to deplete a native population?? It got me thinking.... Would this fly do the trick when I go up to chase the big browns?

I know I could prob go with a olive bugger and have the same success.... Anyone use anything like this?
