Bigger brookies eat smaller brookies or browns. Bigger browns eat smaller brookies or browns. If you fish a mixed brook/brown stream during normal or low flows, you will probably conclude it is a brookie stream. If you fish it in high flows, you will probably conclude it is a brownie stream. Your streamer will work but probably won't give you any advantage over your olive wooly bugger, as you note.

Have a cool experience watching a larger brown and smaller brook interact from this past weekend, which I will post up once I get the pictures loaded off my phone. I did not have to tie on a brookie streamer to entice the brown after he failed at taking the brookie 😊
