
Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Need help casting

Re: Need help casting

Author: : springer1

Date: : 2014/5/6 11:33:54

URL:

Quote:

I'd have to decide between the 8' 5/6wt, or the 6'6" 3/4 wt...

Some people would prefer to stay at 7'6" or under for this type glass as longer can get heavier in weight. Other people say it doesn't matter to them. But no doubt that more advanced types of glass are lighter at 8' than the Eagle Claw. But find some reviews on line and you'll read that the newer (not older) Eagle Claw feather-lights fish surprisingly nice and are easy to learn on. Here's one

<http://thefiberglassmanifesto.blogspot.com/2014/05/eagle-claw-feather-light-series.html>

Note their comment that it's best to start with the larger line weight if the rod is weighted for 2 although many new lines now state they are actually 1/2 "heavier" than listed.

Some people like the softer action of glass others don't - its a personal thing like anything else.