Two weeks ago, I was fishing a small local stream. I saw one car in the parking area. When I arrived at the section of the stream I wanted to fish, I made sure the other angler was not fishing near this stretch. I caught several trout on an emerger. I was startled when a splash landed about 10 feet from me. Two bait guys showed up and cast repeatedly directly over my head. I caught one more and left the area. There were two of them, much younger than me, so I did not say a word. One cast was so close, I could see the corn as it hit the water. I did not see another angler anywhere on the stream.
