Ran into a solid hatch of what I believe were two different kinds of light-colored mayflies last night on Hammer. I am not sure what the first one is. White fly?

2a and 2b are the same bug. Appears to be some sort of drake. I am only really familiar with Green drakes and this one looked a little different and slightly smaller. Although when I was there two weeks ago, I captured one mayfly that was definitely a green drake so I guess it could be one.

Sorry I couldn't get better pics with my cell phone.
