
Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Winston BIII LS vs. Sage One

Re: Winston BIII LS vs. Sage One

Author: : Pghtrouthunter

Date: : 2014/7/31 23:29:41

URL:

Try a double taper line on your Helios 2 to slow it down. It's amazing what a change in line can do....

The Sage One in 9' 5 wt is a cannon, if you don't like a Helios 2 for a dry fly rod I can't imagine you would like a One, which might be the fastest action 5 wt. on the market.

I have a Hardy Zenith which I would recommend in the 4 wt category. It will pitch streamers easily and be much better on dries than the One. You can over line it at 4.5 or 5 wt. Line and it will perform phenomenally. Check it out.,,,