I do obsess about sharpening my hooks though. Usually once every 10 minutes.

That is probably a good habit to get into. I can't say I've ever sharpened a hook on the stream. I've never been good at "peripherals" that keep my fly off the water. I hate tying new tippetts on, let alone whole new leaders. I always try to prepare as much as possible before a trip because I know I won't get much accomplished on the terminal side once I'm on the stream. I am not even very good at catching the scenery around me. Something I've gotta work on I guess.
