Jack, any tips on foraging for them?

Streamside grazing is a hit-or-miss proposition. Sometimes you come back with a few rusty hooks, 1/4 oz. splitshot and ten feet of 30 lb. test monofilament, other times, a few fresh flies, reusable splitshot, and in my case a few weekends ago, a new-fangled magic indicator. Rusty flies are not always a bust, however, as they occasionally have a nice bead- or cone- head that can later be carved away with a straight razor and incorporated into a new tie.
