Looking for a little bit of advice on fishing limestone streams. I am comfortable on freestone and tailwater streams but not on limestones. I was fishing on Big Spring Creek this past weekend and never really felt comfortable. I fished primarily tandem nymphs, usually a scud or cress bug with a zebra midge. I tried with a small thingamabobber indicator, a dry fly as an indicator, no indicator and high sticking. I did get one small rainbow while using a dry fly as an indicator. I did not try swinging any soft hackles that day. Any advice on techniques for this type of stream would be most helpful.
