I hope they go under on that note.

Why? Because they've found a market? People are willing to pay it. Unless they lock the dog bed market down at $100 when you need one cheaper, I see no reason for any hard feelings about it. I sure as hell can't afford that, but more power to the people that can and will.

I still say good luck to them. More fly shops = more competition = better for us. Who likes driving over an hour to get to a decent shop for a wheel of shot? I own an orvis rod, as well as some other little bits of gear. No complaints with it. I kept my eyes open for a deal for the rod, and found their prices to be industry standard for the rest of the stuff. I think you should wait and see what this place carries before passing judgment. I've seen a few orvis shops that carried none of the dog bed or cashmere sweater nonsense.

Shawn, I suggest you stay away from the king of prussia mall. It might give you an aneurysm. 😊
